

Vote Watched In California By Republicans

WASHINGTON (AP) — California Republicans choose Tuesday between Sen. Barry Goldwater and Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller in a presidential primary that highlights a week of feverish political activity in 13 states.

In the California contest, the state's 86 Republican nomination votes are at stake. Goldwater backers think victory would make possible his nomination on the first ballot at the GOP convention, which begins six weeks from today.

Those opposed to the Arizona figure a Rockefeller victory would slow down and perhaps stall Goldwater's drive short of the 655 votes needed for nomination.

As for the New York governor, by week's end he could have more than 200 delegates in his quest for the nomination—providing he beats Goldwater in the winner-take-all California contest and picks up a majority of the 82 district delegates, as expected, in Tuesday's New York primary.

Goldwater Ahead

The Associated Press survey of delegates chosen shows the first ballot breakdown based on primary commitments, pledges, instructions and stated preference.

Sen. Barry Goldwater	316
Gov. William W. Scranton	71
Henry Cabot Lodge	44
Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller	41
Sen. Margaret Chase Smith	15
Richard M. Nixon	10
Favorite sons	100
Uncommitted	261

Democrats staged intra-party battles over the weekend in two states—setting up a runoff primary June 27 in the North Carolina governor's race and healing a long-time party split in Nebraska.

In the Tar Heel State, former U.S. Dist. Judge Richardson Preyer, running with the unspoken blessing of liberal Gov. Terry Sanford, led a six-man field in Saturday's primary. But he failed to get a majority and will face former Superior Court Judge Dan K. Moore, a moderate with conservative backing who trailed by 24,000 votes.

No Write-Ins

In Nebraska, party officers backed by Gov. Frank Morrison were picked at a state Democratic convention Sunday. It ended a 12-year division between factions led by Morrison and outgoing national committeeman Bernard J. Boyle, who did not seek re-election.

Delegates pledged to Rockefeller and Goldwater are the only ones on the California ballot, and write-in votes are not permitted.

In New York, 20 delegate candidates are backing the senator and five others are uncommitted. But Rockefeller is expected to win about 70 of them. Ten at-large delegates will be chosen later by the state GOP committee.

Also to be elected Tuesday are 14 GOP delegates in South Dakota.

Over the weekend, Goldwater picked off Mississippi's 13 GOP delegates—as expected.

Some 260 Republican delegates will be named this week including 10 at-large in the Nebraska state convention today.

New York Areas Terrorized By Young Raiders

NEW YORK (AP)—Bands of teen- and aged Negro marauders, raiding subway trains and a ferry boat, brought terror to normally quiet sections of Brooklyn and lower Manhattan over the weekend.

Early Sunday 20 youths stormed aboard a subway train en route from Coney Island in Brooklyn and terrorized and robbed passengers.

The youths, many of them reeking with alcohol, left the train at Kings Highway, Brooklyn, after smashing windows and light bulbs.

Residents Angered

They ran to the street, smashed the window of a beauty parlor and stole about $90 from the cash register.

Residents of the district, which is predominantly white, reacted with anger and a street clash was narrowly averted.

About 40 persons poured out of homes and a bar and began "passing remarks," said detective Raymond Sheerin.

Sheerin continued: "They wanted to do something. It was like they were trying to say to us, 'Let us have them for a little while' or something to that effect."

Sheerin was among officers in 11 cars which sped to the area. Twelve of the youths were arrested.

Less than two hours earlier, two men and two youths cowed the motorman aboard a subway train near Prospect Park in Brooklyn. They threatened the motorman with a meat cleaver.

Wild Mob On Ferry

Police said the four got off at Prospect Park, boarded another train, and threatened passengers with the cleaver. One passenger Clifford Renaus, 24, was injured.

Judy, who is 17 and from Navarre, Ohio, gave up a $10,000 scholarship in resigning her title as "Miss Teen-Age America." She was graduated from high school last week.

Her husband is a 21-year-old Central Michigan University football player who is majoring in physical education. She plans to return with him in September for his senior year and they will live in an apartment near the campus.

During the summer, she and her husband will help his father run the summer resort he operates at Munising in Michigan's Upper Peninsula.

The wedding was a families-only affair.

Judy and George had been sweethearts before she entered the "Miss Teen-Age" competition.

And when she entered she listed as one of her goals in life: "To have a happy family, be a good mother and wife."

Plymouth High Teacher Found Shot To Death

KALAMAZOO (AP)—The killer of school teacher and church worker Gary Albert Smock eluded police today after having left few clues to the Memorial Day weekend slaying.

Smock, 30, Plymouth high school teacher and youth worker for the Church of God, was shot to death Friday night or early Saturday and his shoeless body locked in the trunk of his car.

State Police Sgt. Carl Lutz said the killer may have been a hitch-hiker or a demented man. The few clues included a palm and finger print on the car.

A state trooper came upon the abandoned car Saturday on U.S. 131 about a mile from here. A wrecker was towing it to the Paw Paw post while Smock's wife, Thelma, 29, was at the sheriff's office in Allegan seeking help in locating her husband.

Hands Tied

The Smocks, parents of two girls, had combined a family visit in Allegan, home of Mrs. Smock's parents, with a church errand by Smock to Battle Creek on which he disappeared.

Smock's body, with shoes removed and hands tied behind his back, was found face-down in the car trunk. A Paw Paw car dealer supplied a key to open the trunk.

Smock had been shot in the head with a .22 caliber gun, police reported from an autopsy.

The autopsy indicated Smock died about 8 a.m. Saturday. He had told his wife he expected to rejoin her in Allegan the night before, driving back the 40 miles from Battle Creek.

Sgt. Lutz said the killing may have taken place elsewhere than where the car was found. He said Smock had been dead from 12 to 20 hours when the car was found but that witnesses said the car had been at the scene only about six hours.

Smock's empty wallet lay in the car. Its contents were strewn about.

Hitchhiker Blamed

Neighbors of the Smocks at Plymouth said the couple was quiet and industrious. The children are Cynthia, 4, and Deanna, 6 months.

William Harding, principal of Plymouth West High School where Smock taught, subscribed to the theory that a hitchhiker might have been the slayer.

"Gary would be the kind of man to pick up a hitchhiker," Harding said. "He was always going out of his way to help people."

Lutz said Smock had bought gasoline at a filling station near Kalamazoo late Friday night on a credit card. He said the car was found less than 10 miles from the filling station but that its recorded mileage was about 100 miles more than was shown at the filling station.

Rebels Routed

LEOPOLDVILLE, the Congo (AP)—Pro-Communist rebel soldiers have been routed from the North Katanga provincial capital of Albertville, held by the rebels for three days.

It appeared, however, that ranking members of the ruling Congress party were lining up behind Shastri and that he would be elected by acclamation at a party meeting Tuesday.

Party leaders asked party President Kumaraswami Kamaraj to poll leading members and advise which candidate should be elected. He was reported finding a Shastri boom.

Kamaraj said which candidate he will propose is far from settled. He said he would meet 300 Congress officials, including Desai, and should have a good idea of how things shaped up by tonight.

Viet Nam Load Carried By U.S.

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—President Johnson's call for more flags to support the war effort in South Viet Nam has brought favorable responses from more than 18 nations, but the United States will continue shouldering the biggest proportion of the burden.

The United States provides 97 per cent of the foreign aid received by the government of South Viet Nam. The aid expected from other countries is not likely to reduce this percentage. It will probably increase.

Officials say responses received so far from other nations range from "encouraging" to "enthusiastic." But most have been in general terms, and discussions are still in the initial stage.

Most of the aid is expected to be economic, technical and medical. It will be aimed at the rural population and tailored to their needs.

Officials concede that the aid other countries contribute probably will continue to be a drop in the bucket compared to the U.S. effort. But it may have an important symbolic value.

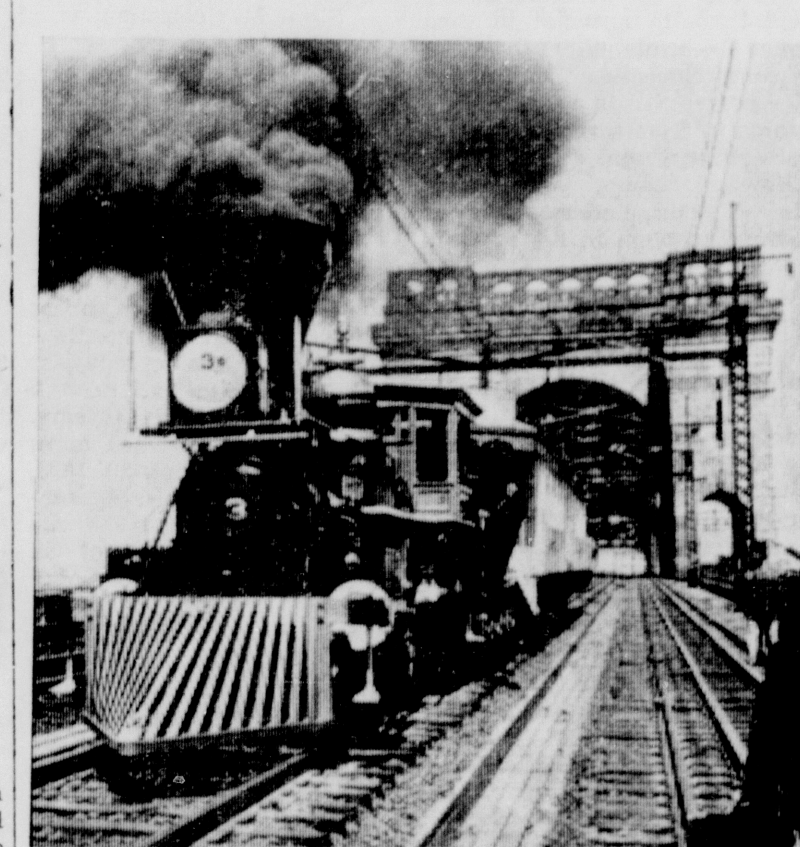

"It will broaden the base of free world support for the war effort in South Viet Nam and help counter charges that this is an American war," one official said.

The United States maintains about 16,000 military men in South Viet Nam and is pouring $500 million a year into the country in military and economic aid. It has recently promised an additional $125 million.

Traffic Deaths Hit New Record Over Week End

By The Associated Press

The nation's traffic deaths during the Memorial Day weekend—more than 400—hit a record high for a three-day observance of the holiday.

The death toll on the highways during the Memorial Day holiday period also showed 23 deaths in boating accidents and 73 persons drowned, a total of 514. Boating deaths during the holiday period totaled 16 while 40 persons drowned.

The record high traffic death toll for any Memorial Day holiday period was 462 in a four-day observance in 1961. Last Memorial Day was a one-day observance and there were 159 deaths on the highways.

The record toll for the first holiday weekend of the spring topped the previous high mark of 371 set over the Memorial Day period in 1958. The National Safety Council had made a preholiday estimate that between 410 and 490 persons might be killed in traffic accidents during the 78-hour period.

The heaviest toll was Sunday as millions of motorists jammed highways headed for home after outings. Reports indicate nearly 150 persons were killed in traffic accidents in the final 24 hours of the holiday period.

Traffic fatalities during the holiday period compared to 418 traffic deaths during a nonholiday weekend of 78 hours, from 6 p.m. Thursday, May 14 to midnight Sunday, May 17. The Associated Press survey for the nonholiday period also showed 23 deaths in boating accidents and 73 persons drowned, a total of 514. Boating deaths during the holiday period totaled 16 while 40 persons drowned.

Accidents Kill 21 In Michigan

By The Associated Press

Destroying lives at a higher rate than last year, accidents killed 21 persons on Michigan highways during the Memorial Day weekend.

An estimated 3 million cars jammed state roads as the 21 persons died during the 78-hour holiday period.

Last year, 24 persons were killed during a 102-hour Memorial Day weekend.

This year, vehicle smashups took an average of one life every 3 hours, 45 minutes.

Traffic mishaps last year claimed an average of one life every 4 hours, 15 minutes.

The lone bright spot in the weekend death toll was the absence of any deaths by drowning or from boating accidents.

The holiday tabulation of fatalities was kept by The Associated Press from 6 p.m. Thursday until midnight Sunday.

Four Children And Host Perish In Cottage Fire

HOPATCONG, N.J. (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hennings are in a hospital room today, the victims of a fire that killed four of their five children and their vacation host.

The fire struck Sunday in a house in which Mrs. Hennings, her five children, and the owner, Theresa Coston, 53, were sleeping.

Mrs. Hennings, 37, managed to flee with her 2-year-old son, William. The other children, ranging in age from 3 to 13, and Mrs. Coston burned to death in their beds.

Hennings, 40, who was sleeping alone in a nearby cottage, tried with his wife to enter the burning home but they were driven back by the flames.

Last Ties With Premier Cut By Communists

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The Communist Pathet Lao severed its last ties today with neutralist Premier Souvanna Phouma's regime, burying the fiction of a coalition government uniting all Laotian factions.

The Pathet Lao announced it is withdrawing its remaining government officials from Vientiane, the rightist-controlled administrative capital.

An announcement by the Pathet Lao radio said the Communists no longer recognize Souvanna Phouma as premier. It said the two remaining Pathet Lao Cabinet members, Secretary of State for Public Works Soukongsack and Secretary of State for Economy Khamphouane Tounalon, would leave the capital.

The two officials have stayed with the Polish delegation to the International Control Commission for the past three weeks, claiming their lives were endangered.

The Pathet Lao asked the commission to assist in the departure of the officials.

"Prince Souvanna Phouma is now only a prisoner held by the United States and their lackeys," the Pathet Lao said. "Therefore, he no longer holds the title of premier of the legitimate national union government."

Observers in Tokyo believe the Pathet Lao, which controls about two-thirds of Laos, may establish a rival government of Communists and dissident nationalists.

CRISIS DEEPENS

HONOLULU (AP)—Top U.S. strategists opened secret talks on Communist-plagued Southeast Asia today as the shaky coalition government of Laos appeared to be falling apart.

The virtual pullout of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao from a patched-up coalition with Laotian nationalists and rightists deepened the crisis atmosphere surrounding the talks.

Just about every key American official concerned with Southeast Asia was present for the two-day conference behind closed doors at Pacific Command headquarters overlooking Pearl Harbor.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge flew in from Saigon Sunday and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara arrived from Washington twelve hours later.

"Not Hopeless"

McNamara called the meeting "particularly timely" in view of increases in tempo and intensity of communist aggression in Southeast Asia.

He charged that Communist North Viet Nam is directing attacks in both Laos and South Viet Nam.

Lodge declared the situation in South Viet Nam is certainly not hopeless.

The officials arranged to begin a day-long session early this morning.

The final decision maker—President Johnson—waited in Washington for recommendations that could lead to military pressures against Communist North Viet Nam, source of much of the trouble in Laos and South Viet Nam.

Any decision involving military moves would mark a significant turn in U.S. policy, which so far has avoided such action against North Viet Nam.

It was understood that U.S. officials have been considering seriously a variety of possible pressures, ranging from demonstrations of strength outside North Viet Nam to more direct

Close To Crisis

Child Guidance Needs Staffing Above Finances

The success of the Upper Peninsula Child Guidance Clinic program in the future is going to depend on staffing and not financing.

That prediction was put forth Thursday by Dr. Arthur Tuuri, Flint, director of the C. S. Mott Foundation Children's Health Center, in an address at the annual meeting of the child guidance clinic held in the Hotel Northland, Marquette.

"Once you get a highly competent staff, you'll have to do something to maintain it," Dr. Tuuri said. He added that the Mott Foundation has almost unlimited funds but still couldn't recruit the kind of staff it wanted until it offered its staff members something over and above financial reward — an opportunity to engage in research and in education.

A native of Negaunee who retains strong ties with the Upper Peninsula, Dr. Tuuri offered to help the child guidance clinic with its staffing problem.

"If you will select the people you want," he said, "I will see that they get the fellowships and scholarships to help them."

Dr. Tuuri was instrumental in obtaining a $5,000 annual grant for the child guidance clinic several years ago from the Mott Foundation, with which he has been associated since 1948.

U.P. Need

"We need to be concerned with the total child," Dr. Tuuri said. "From a medical standpoint, there are tremendous gaps in treatment, and mental health is one of the most important of these. I think mental health is one of the greatest needs in the Upper Peninsula."

Dr. Richard O'Dell, Marquette, child guidance clinic president, conducted the meeting and reviewed progress of the Upper Peninsula Mental Health Planning Committee, which was organized in Marquette last February to survey mental health needs in this area and draft recommendations for meeting the needs.

"The impact upon the Upper Peninsula Child Guidance Clinic of new national and state legislation, not to mention new policies, rules and regulations of the State Department of Mental Health, is certain to be great," Dr. O'Dell said. "Inevitably, the operations of this clinic will be more closely integrated with those of other mental health agencies in the Upper Peninsula, either through a comprehensive, Peninsula-wide program or in a segmented fashion in from three to five or more sub-regional areas."

Howard Lamb, Marquette, clinic director, underscored the staffing problem in his annual report.

Staff Overburdened

"Testimony to the increasing thinness of coverage for the child guidance clinic caseload in the Upper Peninsula is provided in the contrast between the 1962 report case activity as contrasted with that reported for 1963," he said. "1,986 interviews were held with 629 children during 1962, as compared with 4,036 interviews with 554 children during 1963."

"Inability successfully to recruit candidates for the vacant positions of branch supervisor at Houghton and of clinical psychologist at Marquette during 1963 threw a disproportionate burden on already overloaded staff activities."

Because the clinic and other mental health facilities in the Upper Peninsula are in a state of flux, the membership voted to extend the terms of the officers for another year and re-elected Dr. O'Dell as president along with Kenneth S. Lowe, Marquette, vice president; Mrs. Mark T. Payant, Marquette, secretary, and Probate Judge Michael F. DeFanti, Marquette, treasurer.

Re-elected to the executive committee were Mrs. Dorothy MacDonald, Calumet; Ogden E. Johnson, Ishpeming; Mrs. James Fyvie, Manistique; Mrs. Joseph Herbert, Manistique; Mrs. Max Reynolds, Marquette; Ellwood A. Mattson, Marquette; Dr. Roland Schwartzgoebel, Marquette; Mrs. Richard Nebel Sr., Munising; Richard M. Speicher, Sault Ste. Marie, and Mrs. Mary Caserio, Laurium.

Richard Rinehart, Escanaba, was named a director to succeed Walter Bright, Escanaba, who is leaving the area.

Computers Link Up GM Plants

DETROIT (AP) — A high speed communications system linking General Motors headquarters here with 1,400 units in the United States and 16 foreign countries went into operation today.

The system is an involved set-up of electronic computers and transmitting and receiving machines. GM said it surpasses any other comparable system elsewhere except in the communications field itself.

The new system supplants GM's worldwide teletype operation which operated since 1939. The new system can transmit at the rate of 3,000 words a minute and between 10 and 14 million words a day. Teletype handled about one million words daily.

Teletype cost about one cent a word. The new system will cost less, GM said. The new system not only will facilitate and speed up production orders and other elements in corporation operation but also will permit economies in telephone and mail needs, the company said.

Book Opera Star In Concert Here

As a result of the enthusiastic response of music lovers of Delta County to the recent membership drive of the Community Concert Association, the board of that organization today announced that it will bring to Escanaba a Metropolitan Opera star next season.

Appearing here next spring will be Lili Chookasian, outstanding contralto of the Metropolitan Opera Association. Featured by Leonard Bernstein in his television tribute to President John F. She is a native of Chicago and joined the "Met" in March of 1962.

In addition to Miss Chookasian, the Paginini String Quartet and the DeCormier Folk Singers, a fourth concert was made possible by the sold-out auditorium, the Community Concert Association announced. This will be the Dorian Woodwind Quintet, which is scheduled to appear in the 1964-65 season.

In a meeting with Tiny Stacey, New York representative, on Friday evening, May 29, Conrad D. Beck, president of the Community Concert Association, and other board members expressed gratitude for the faith of the county community in the cultural program.

Special Film At Witnesses Assembly Here

Patrick C. Madden, presiding minister of the Escanaba congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said today that a free two-hour color film will be presented Saturday, June 6, as a special feature of the three-day assembly of Jehovah's Witnesses scheduled for this weekend at the Junior High School auditorium. The film is entitled, "Proclaiming Everlasting Good News Around The World."

According to Madden, the film was produced by the Watch Tower Society as part of the around-the-world series of assemblies held from June 30 to Sept. 8, 1963. Over 580,000 persons from 161 lands attended the 24 conventions in principal cities of the U.S.A., Europe, Asia, Australia, and the Islands of the Pacific.

"This film is not just a travelogue," Madden said, "although it shows scenes in 22 countries and 36 cities and many highlights of this unusual assembly. Its theme draws on the basic influences at work in our modern civilization that are undermining the morale and the spirituality of people in all nations and all walks of life."

"As the world tour progresses in the film, we see, through the eyes of the camera and the 583 delegates who traveled as a body to the 24 convention cities, marks of an ancient civilization long dead — symbols, customs and ceremonies that are still affecting the lives of the people throughout the world. What these far-reaching influences mean to us and how they are being combated to preserve a free society is a matter that affects the life of everyone now living."

"We expect to show this film to people all over the world," Madden said. "It is already being scheduled in cities all over this country and will soon be carried into the heart of Asia, South America and Africa — in fact, every place where people are allowed to congregate, which might rule out, for the present at least, countries behind the Iron Curtain," Madden added.

The showing in Escanaba is scheduled for 7 p.m. in the Junior High School Auditorium.

How to swallow a bitter pill

First, find a bitter pill. There are so few nowadays. It all started because children, bless 'em, are so good at resisting bad-tasting medicine. You can medicate their chins or hair, but getting the stuff in them is beyond the ken of science. Kids can spit a country mile. So pharmacists began sugar-coating pills, putting medication in capsules, or mixing with sweet syrup. And we soon found that adults, too, like medicine the easy way. So now, most of our prescriptions are quite pleasant to take. If you should run into one of the few bitter ones, believe us, there are good medical reasons for it.

Starlings Are Expensive Pests

WASHINGTON (AP)—In 1890 a lover of Shakespeare introduced starlings to these shores. He released 60 pairs in New York's Central Park as part of his crusade to bring to America all birds mentioned in the bard's works.

Since then, they have multiplied and multiplied. Now a government bird expert says the nation's starling population exceeds 500 million.

The expert, Walter W. Dykstra, a research staff specialist of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, said the flocks of starlings have brought protests from farmers and cattlemen across the nation.

The reason: Starlings adore fruit crops, such as cherries and grapes. And they like to eat — and contaminate — feed put out in feedlots to fatten cattle for market.

The annual damage to agricultural crops alone is estimated by Dykstra at $40-$50 million.

The federal government is also upset because of the expense of keeping clean the buildings used by large starling flocks as resting places.

Last Christmas, a bird counter reported 16,500 nestled along the ledges and roof of just one Washington hotel — the Willard. It has since been wired to give birds that come too close an electric shock. This is considered the most effective way to keep them off building, but since only 100 of the 10,000 federal buildings are wired, shocked starlings usually don't have to go farther than the next ledge.

But such installations are expensive. All kinds of other tricks have been tried.

There is one new hope: Dykstra says a chemical is being developed to sterilize starlings at their winter roosting sites and field tests are under way. "But," he added, "it will be some years before the method can be put to large-scale use."

FORGER'S LUCK

HARLAN, Ky. (AP) — A forger shouldn't push his luck — especially when he's drawing on the county attorney's account.

A 19-year-old Harlan youth charged with forgery learned this the hard way when he showed up on Monday to try to cash a bogus check at a bank where he had passed two of them on Saturday.

The youth, who worked for the county attorney, fled when a teller spotted the bad signature, but was later arrested.

U.P. Air Service

The Upper Peninsula Air Service Committee is moving to organize Upper Peninsula planning for better air service.

The Michigan Aeronautics Commissions is urging action.

The cause is one of great importance to the U.P. and one in which it is difficult to get things done, because there is no well organized, well staffed agency in the U.P. devoted to commercial aviation.

The U.P. Air Service Committee is a volunteer group of changing membership and with no finances that rallies in emergencies to represent the Peninsula's cause in aviation affairs. It's a quasi-governmental group that draws its membership and resources from municipalities with air service.

There is no new crisis looming up like a genie that threatens to cancel the U.P.'s airliner service. But the Peninsula has lost two air services in the past year—Segment 9 from Duluth to the Sault, and the aerial bridge from Escanaba to Traverse City—and there's a federal government movement underway to reduce airline subsidies, and this could further reduce U.P. air schedules.

It is necessary to understand the slow process by which the federal government regulates commercial aviation through the Civil Aeronautics Board to know why the State Department of Aeronautics is pushing to U.P. to protect itself. It takes a long time to get CAB action on new schedules and the U.P. is not well equipped for the expensive, extensive process of pleading in air hearings.

The State sees the aerial bridge case as an opportunity for the U.P. to plead with CAB in an existing case for a hearing reviewing the U.P.'s air service and its need for more. (North Central Airlines suspended service on the aerial bridge flights short of the full 5-year trial authorized by CAB because the flights weren't boarding the required minimum number of passengers.)

It is now proposed that before expiration of the CAB authorization for subsidy on the aerial bridge flights on Dec. 1, 1965, that the U.P. ask for restoration of this service, or, much more likely, for some other alternative air service to help the U.P. with its problems of transportation and of isolation.

The U.P. Air Service Committee is now moving to organize U.P. action on such a request to CAB.

If the U.P. is hep to the huge implications it will support this effort because:

1. Without two round trip flights a day or more, minimum, no U.P. city is in a good transportation position for industrial growth.

2. The long range view of rail passenger transportation is that it is going to be difficult or impossible to maintain service north of Green Bay.

3. Houghton, Menominee and Escanaba, which used to have three round trip flights a day on North Central are down to two. (This isn't as bad as it looks because these cities are now served with speedier 44-seat Convair planes instead of 26-passenger DC3s, but the frequency of service has value, especially in business travel and 80 per cent of North Central's passengers on U.P. flights are on business travel.)

There is no way to fool the CAB or North Central. The only enduring way to improve air service is to provide more passengers. The Upper Peninsula could do this by using the services provided beyond their capacity. But until this is done there is need for understanding by the federal agencies that it is an idiot act to cut off subsidy in a well planned project to develop air traffic in this area with so much need for economic development.

The federal government's right hand should know what its left hand is doing. To have CAB cut off air service subsidy and pull the rug out from under economic development while the U.S. is increasing appropriations for Accelerated Public Works, Area Redevelopment Administration, and other agencies to achieve economic development is goofy. And yet it's going on.

The Doctor Says:

Don't Let Child Eat Dirt

By Dr. Wayne G. Brandstadt.

Q — Our 18-month-old son has a craving to eat dirt. He'd rather eat dirt than candy. He is otherwise normal. What can I do to stop him?

A — It is not uncommon for a toddler to eat a great variety of substances that are not food. This is part of his exploration of his universe. The cause is not known, but this tendency does not indicate any lack of an essential nutrient in his diet — dirt would not supply such a lack. All toddlers should be watched and prevented from eating things that are harmful. Flakes of old paint from the walls present a real hazard — lead poisoning — unless the walls have been painted with one of the newer lead-less paints.

The best way to stop your son from continuing this or any other potentially dangerous habit is to issue a firm ultimatum: No more dirt! You must teach him early in life that there are some things he just can't do.

Q — My 11-year-old daughter has a high IQ, but she can't seem to do her school work properly. Her father was killed in an auto accident when she was six. Could this have anything to do with her poor school work?

A — Emotional reactions of children to the death of a loved one vary greatly. It is certainly possible that your daughter is still brooding over the death of her father and this could have a bad effect on her school performance. This would be especially true if she has never had a chance to talk out her ideas and fears about death. Some children have weird and unrealistic ideas that need to be discussed.

State Briefs

EAST LANSING (AP)—Fires claimed a record number of lives in Michigan last year, state police reported Thursday. The annual fire marshal's report showed a record 86,845 fires claimed 273 lives. Property damage was estimated at $59.15 million—a 10-year high, police said.

DETROIT (AP)—Detroit public relations executive David Boston announced Thursday he will seek the Democratic nomination for U.S. representative from the new 13th District, which Charles C. Diggs, D-Mich., now represents. Diggs has indicated he will seek election in the reshaped Detroit district.

Washington Comment

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — President Johnson is getting pretty deep into the thicket of problems that go with filling important federal judgeships. No Chief Executive escapes this involvement for long.

His really thankless assignment is choosing a replacement for Judge Ben Cameron of Mississippi. Cameron, who died several weeks ago, was one of the nine judges serving on the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit covering Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia, Florida and the Canal Zone.

Cameron's one-man rulings frequently slowed or blocked court desegregation orders issued by other judges in school cases. He was a key figure in delays which preceded entry of Negro James Meredith into the University of Mississippi in late 1962.

Though recommendations have been quietly filtering in from senators representing some of the affected states, as well as from outside sources, no action on the Fifth Circuit vacancy has been taken or seems likely in the early future.

The choice will not be easy. Civil rights groups are saying plainly they do not want another Cameron. Militant segregationists will resist a moderate choice. If talent scouts should consult both camps in the search for some sort of compromise, the result could be merely to fan their mutual suspicions and make any selection unpalatable to both.

The problem over the Cameron appeals court vacancy is further aggravated by a current move to split the Fifth Circuit into two smaller circuits. The present circuit is the second largest geographically, and has the largest work load of any appellate region in the United States.

The Judicial Conference of the United States, headed by Chief Justice Earl Warren, recommended a split many months ago. This official body of top judges suggested the Fifth be divided so as to include Texas, Louisiana and the Canal Zone in one circuit, with Alabama, Mississippi, Georgia and Florida in the other.

A draft bill embodying these proposals is due for Senate committee study. But, once again, civil rights and segregationist forces are each suspicious they will somehow suffer if this or perhaps any division is decided upon.

One Justice Department lawyer comments that, even without the controversy over a possible division, choosing a new judge in a difficult area like the Fifth Circuit can be tougher for the President than naming a new Supreme Court justice.

Not all Johnson's dealings with the judiciary are this troublesome. Thus far in 1964 he has nominated, and been confirmed by the Senate, seven federal judges. He has named another seven on which action is pending.

There are ten spots to be filled on the federal bench at the district court level, and five in various appeals courts from coast to coast.

Four of the vacancies are the oldest on the list, dating from the creation of 73 new federal judgeships in late May of 1961. These posts, in other words, never have been filled. In two of these cases, work loads are not great enough in the area to create heavy pressure for presidential action.

MEMORY WAS ACCURATE LONDON, Ky. (AP)—Jim Barnett was stopped by a man who asked: "Are you the son of Mack Barnett?"

Getting an affirmative answer the man continued: "In 1928, I purchased a wagon bed iron from your father and never paid him. Now he's dead and I'm able to pay the $3.20."

He handed over the money and left. Later, Jim looked over old records of Barnett Brothers and found the debt.

State Spending Bill Is Signed

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George W. Romney has signed a bill providing for $6.1 million in supplemental state spending for the rest of the 1963-64 fiscal year.

The bill includes $660,082 for medical treatment of afflicted children, $415,561 for medical care of crippled children and $450,000 to place mental patients in Wayne County General Hospital.

Also included in the bill is $13,000 to establish two halfway houses for juvenile lawbreakers and $700,000 to accelerate building at the Boys Training School at Whitmore Lake.

Romney also signed a bill to allow community colleges to establish vocational - technical programs through borrowing, and fixing a tax limitation. Oakland County votes on the question next month.

The governor also signed bills to:

—Require that counties elect delegates to county political conventions after filing of nominating petitions by candidates, instead of by write-in vote.

—Provide for central filing of certain mortgages on railroad and utility properties.

Traffic Deaths In Michigan At All-Time Peak

EAST LANSING (AP)—Traffic deaths in Michigan for the first four months of 1964 reached an all-time peak, state police said.

The 637 deaths were 169 ahead of last year's total for the same period and 29 higher than the previous record of 607 in 1937.

Deaths in April of 141 were down one from April, 1963, but the total number of accidents increased from 16,545 to 19,801, and injuries rose from 8,327 to 9,631.

The female buffalo, born a year and a half ago at the Detroit zoo, was loaded in a specially built wooden crate aboard the Dutch freighter Prins Alexander for her 21-day voyage.

Ask The Dentist

By DR. ALFRED E. SEYLER

And The Michigan State Dental Association

Q. My brother came home from the Army recently. He had a denture made while in service which looks like aluminum. It is very light and very strong. Do you know of any dentist in this area who could make me a denture of aluminum?

A. Your brother evidently was fortunate enough to have had his denture made as part of a research program conducted by dentists in the Armed Services. His denture is probably made with a cast aluminum base which has been shown to be strong, light and closely adaptable to the tissues of the mouth. The conventional plastic denture material is used on some surfaces or edges of an aluminum base and ordinary porcelain teeth are used.

The chief disadvantage of an aluminum base denture is discoloration, making the finish a dull gray rather than shiny. However, when aluminum base dentures are cleaned with soap and warm water and a brush after each meal they don't discolor. Aluminum base dentures should not be soaked in commercial cleansing preparations because this causes pitting of the surface.

The aluminum base denture may be the thing in the future, but much research must be done before it becomes the material of choice to be used for the average dental patient.

Q. Should a person use a mouthwash as a daily mouth care aid? If so, what kind?

A. Medicated mouthwashes are of questionable value to oral health and they are not ordinarily needed. After one brushes his teeth thoroughly, they should be clean. Rinsing with a mouthwash removes loose particles of debris and its effectiveness is dependent on the force one uses to swish the mixture in between and around the teeth. Water would do the job about as well.

Mouthwashes which claim to overcome mouth odors probably don't do all they claim to do. Bad breath may come from poor mouth cleanliness, oral disease, or even systemic trouble. If bad breath persists after a good brushing of the teeth and tongue, it would be wiser to investigate the real cause rather than to rely on a mouthwash to reduce or cover up the odor.

Although the advertisements would have you believe that a mouthwash can prevent diseases of the mouth, throat and nose, any such medication should be used under professional direction and supervision.

I think there may be a place for a mouthwash to be used to provide a refreshing taste and odor, but, to be most effective, it must be used properly and thoroughly.

Q. Can you give me any suggestions as to how I can use my dentures better to enable me to bite into an apple or to eat corn on the cob? I've had mine for a month and my dentist just says I'll have to learn to use them.

A. From the balance of your letter, which was too long to print completely, I would say that your dentist has made you a nice set of dentures, but that he hasn't followed through with some suggestions as to how you can get the greatest amount of pleasure from them.

A denture wearer must learn how to chew in a different way than he did with his natural teeth. Your problem seems to be in biting, not chewing, and I do believe that patience and practice will help you. When one bites with natural teeth, the tendency is to bite down and pull forward at the same time. With dentures, instead of pulling out as you bite into food, you must push back and upwards a little, especially when biting into an apple or eating corn off the cob.

Pushing back as you bite with your upper denture gives you more leverage to keep the denture in place, and the more firmly you push the tighter the denture will be and just a slight twist on the food may help. In biting an apple, a denture wearer should push the apple up and back against the upper teeth to seat the denture firmly against the ridge.

If you grasp the front teeth of your denture and push or pull, you will note that even a well fitted denture can be moved. Patients seem to forget that a denture is fitted against skin, which varies in thickness and toughness, but which is nevertheless soft tissue.

Ann Landers

Husband Wants Sons To Tattle

Dear Ann Landers: My husband's job takes him out on the road four days a week. Lately he has started something new. When he returns on Thursday night he lines up our three boys ages 12, 10 and 6, and invites them to tell on each other.

The one who has the "most complete" report—this means the child who tells the most on his brothers—is the winner of a nice, new shiny dollar.

I didn't like the idea from the first and I said so. It makes me sick to hear these children tattle on one another. My husband says it is the best way to keep them in line.

Last night I heard the middle boy add all sorts of curly-cues to an incident which he was reporting about his older brother. Later I asked him why he embellished the story beyond the truth. He replied, "Because I wanted to win the dollar."

Please print my letter and your answer. I would like my husband to see it. — THE AGAINSTER

Dear Againster: I hope your husband will disband the home-grown spy ring at once. The little game he is playing will unquestionably develop some very undesirable character traits in his sons. It will also teach them to distrust and despise each other.

If your husband must play games he should encourage each boy to report on himself. Such reporting will foster truth and integrity.

Dear Ann Landers: Five months ago today I got my engagement ring. I was the happiest girl alive.

The wedding is planned for September, but as the time draws near I become more frightened and less sure of my love. All Mac and I do is fight. We haven't had a pleasant evening together in weeks.

Certain things about Mac that I used to think were cute now annoy me—his laugh for instance. I fixed him a bacon and tomato sandwich last night and he found four things wrong with it: the bread was too hard, there wasn't enough butter, the tomato was soggy and the bacon was too crisp.

Do all engaged couples go through a stage like this? I am 23 and Mac is 26.—STAGE FRIGHT

Dear Fright: Engaged people who would argue about a bacon and tomato sandwich are probably dwelling on trifles because they don't want to face up to their real problems.

If you two can't get your relationship on an even keel I urge you to break the engagement. This is not a stage. It's a preview of what your marriage would be like.

Dear Ann Landers: If you tell one more young girl to give up her out-of-wedlock child I'll scream.

How can you be so heartless?

Denture movement is to be expected because the denture is resting on a foundation that gives somewhat under pressure. How much the denture moves depends entirely upon how much the tissues underneath move.

Sometimes a patient will feel that the upper front part of their denture doesn't contact the tissue underneath. With a new denture it is unlikely that this is a true condition. The patient's ability to determine whether or not a denture is in contact is limited by the sensory nerves present in this area, and if there are not enough nerve endings in the area, which is often the case, the sensation of contact with the tissue is missing.

I am sure that with practice, patience and determination you will be able to do almost everything you used to be able to do with your own teeth.

Ann Landers

Husband Wants Sons To Tattle

Don't you see that often the baby is all the girl will have in her whole life. I know what I'm talking about because it happened to me.

A social worker talked me into giving up my baby 18 years ago and I've cried myself to sleep every night since. Whenever I see a teen-ager on the street I wonder if it could be mine.

My parents are dead now and I have two sisters who don't talk to me. All I know is work, an empty house and hours of loneliness. If I had kept my child my life would have been full. You are wrong, wrong, wrong—JONQUIL

Dear Jonquil: The social worker gave you good advice. To bring up a fatherless child is plenty tough, even for women who have strength and emotional stability. A woman who has cried every night for 18 years would probably have raised a child with a million problems.

If you are honest you'll admit you wanted the child NOT for the child's sake, but for your own.

If excessive drinking is wrecking your health or destroying someone you love, send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "Help For The Alcoholic," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Apple Packing Firms Fold Up

By AL SANDNER
Associated Press Farm Writer

EAST LANSING (AP)—While Michigan's apple industry is growing faster than any other state—the number of firms packing apples for retail and wholesale distribution is dropping like over-ripe fruit.

Michigan's apple crop—worth about $25 million a year—will increase from 12 million bushels in 1963 to "at least 16 million" in 1964, says the Michigan State Apple Commission.

But the number of apple packing firms has dropped 55 per cent in the past seven years, say economists for the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

"This trend toward fewer and larger packing firms will probably continue because large scale operations are now more economical," said Hoy F. Carman and Dennis Oidenstadt, stationed at Michigan State University.

From 400 To 180
There were about 400 apple packing firms in Michigan in 1956. This number has dropped to 180 at most, they said. And a small number of these handle the major share of bulk packing.

The five largest packing firms in Michigan accounted for 27 per cent of the 1962-63 fresh packaging of fresh apples, they said, and the 10 largest did 41 per cent.

"Seven years ago, a sample of 18 Michigan packing plants showed that the production of the largest firm was less than 80,000 bushels," the economists said. "Today over 12 per cent of the packing plants in the state pack over 100,000 bushels of apples each year."

"Much of this increase can be attributed to higher degrees of mechanization," they added. "For example, about 68 per cent of the packing plants in 1962-63 were in bulk boxes—compared with 39 per cent in 1958-59."

Barrel Disappears
Legal organization changes account for some of the shifting patterns. In at least four cases, they said, individuals who did their own packing banded together into corporations and acquired one large packing operation.

Most of the plants are concentrated in the western fruit belt of the state—although a sizeable number are in the south-east—near the vast metropolitan Detroit market.

There are other changes in the Michigan apple industry in recent years. For instance—wonder what ever happened to the old apple barrel or bushel basket?

They're being rapidly replaced by film or polyethylene bags. Ten years ago, 63 per cent of the apples sold were in crates or bushel baskets. That is now down to 6 per cent—while the plastic containers now cover 60 per cent of the market.

Escanaba Boys In Runaway Admit Robbing Theater

Three runaway Escanaba boys who hitch-hiked their way to the home of a relative in Dearborn in the weekend of May 22 and were brought back by the parents, have confessed to Gladstone State Police that they broke and entered the bar of the Ken-Mar drive-in Theater on May 22.

The boys disappeared after telling their parents that they were going to a wiener roast. They were stopped by state policemen on the highway while hitch-hiking and said that they were thumbing a ride to the home of a relative on the Garden Peninsula.

After returning from Dearborn the boys, each 16, were questioned by state police and admitted that they broke into the Ken-Mar refreshment bar and took candies and other goods. They were turned over to the juvenile court.

Court Strikes Down Alabama Ban On NAACP

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court struck down today an Alabama court order barring the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People from operating in that state.

Justice John M. Harlan delivered the unanimous decision. In litigation that began in 1956, the Montgomery County (Ala.) Circuit Court on Dec. 29, 1961 permanently enjoined NAACP from conducting intrastate business in the state. The ban was on the ground the NAACP had failed to register as a foreign-out-of-state—corporation.

The state in reply said the NAACP had been given full opportunity to be heard in Alabama courts and now presented nothing of a federal nature for action by the U.S. Supreme Court.

In upholding the NAACP contentions, Harlan said, "The judgment below must be reversed."

He noted that, in view of the long history of the case, the Supreme Court had been asked to formulate a decree for entry in the Alabama courts to assure the NAACP's right to conduct activities in Alabama without further delay.

Harlan said such a course was within the power of the Supreme Court, but that the high tribunal's justices preferred to follow usual practice and send the case back to the Alabama Supreme Court for entry of a prompt decree.

Goodreau Faces Sentence Today

Circuit Judge Bernard H. Davidson of Negaunee today opened the June term of Delta County Circuit Court and set for this afternoon the sentencing of James Goodreau of Escanaba for the breaking and entering of the Chatfield Machine & Foundry Co. building on Nov. 11, 1963.

The Goodreau case was the only criminal action on the June term calendar and Judge Davidson said that the jury venire which had been called to report on Wednesday would be excused until 9:30 a.m. Monday, June 22, when it will report for the empaneling of a jury to hear trial of the suit of Joyce Coolman of Escanaba against Lawrence Chouinard, Route 1, Gladstone.

The suit resulted from an automobile collision between the Coolman car and one driven by Sharon Chouinard, daughter of the defendant, on Dec. 29, 1962 on 2nd Ave. N. and 13th St., in Escanaba.

The court was occupied today with the hearing of motions and planned action in several divorce suits, said court clerk, William Butler.

Rev. Seleen Is Delegate To Synod Meeting

The 130th annual meeting of the United Presbyterian Church, Synod of Michigan, will be held at Alma College, June 9, 10 and 11. The Rev. D. Douglas Seleen, minister of the First United Presbyterian Church, will be one of the 350 or more delegates, representing Michigan's 300 Presbyterian Churches.

Agenda items will include discussion of the relationship between the church and state, the current growing racial tensions and the ecumenical ministry to the growing number of youth on the campuses of Michigan's state colleges and universities.

One of the highlights of the three-day meeting will be the laying of the cornerstone for the new Alma College library. Two years ago, at the 128th annual meeting, approval was given to a program to raise funds from Michigan Presbyterians to build a new library for Alma College. Memorial Day Weekend Record Fatality Free

The Memorial Day weekend, in the Delta County area brought more traffic onto the highways than a year ago and resulted in a flurry of ticketing of motorists by augmented State Police patrols for traffic law violations, but there were no traffic fatalities.

State Police Sgt. Hugh Pope and Sheriff Cully Johnson expressed pleasure over the avoidance of a traffic death in the first big weekend traffic of the year in this area, but reported two automobiles destroyed by fire, one woman hospitalized for treatment of crash injuries, four car-deer crashes, several first aid treatment of accident victims and the issuance of dozens of traffic summonses.

Clara Viaw, 22, of Rapid River, was reported in good condition today in St. Francis Hospital with injuries suffered at 2:30 a. m., Sunday on Delta County Road 442 2.2 miles west of Federal Forest Highway 13 in Nahma Township when she lost control of her car on a curve and it ran off the road and rolled over.

She was ticketed for having no driver license and for violation of the speed law. The mishap was one of several on county roads, which contributed more accidents to the local weekend toll than the trunk-lines.

Crash On M-35
Kenneth Lavigne, 30, of 1213 3rd Ave. N., suffered cuts and bruises and was treated at St. Francis Hospital and released after his car left County Road 569 at 2:10 a. m., Sunday one mile north of U. S. 2-41 in Ford River Township.

Lavigne, going south on 569 told State Police he was blinded by lights of another car and ran off a curve on the left hand side. He was ticketed for an expired operator license and violation of the speed law.

Cars driven by Connie Severson, 20, of 420 2nd Ave. S., and Arnold Thompson, 38, of 1820 9th Ave. N., collided at 3:55 p. m., Sunday on M 35 three miles south of Ford River. Both cars were going south and Thompson was making a left turn, state police reported and the Severson car following struck the Thompson car in the rear. She was ticketed for speed.

Two cars were virtually destroyed by fires.

military moves as a guerrilla counter-offensive.

Red China Behind
Official American quarters now tend to consider the problems of Laos and South Viet Nam in tandem—rather than separately—as targets of the same Communist threat facing all of Southeast Asia.

Since Pathet Lao forces in Laos began a spring push several weeks ago, there has been a noticeable hardening of U.S. official thinking on North Viet Nam.

North Viet Nam is supplying men, arms and equipment to insurgents in both Laos and South Viet Nam. Looming behind North Viet Nam is Communist China.

The United States has been trying to get across the point that it intends to stay in Southeast Asia—that it will never withdraw while nations there want its help.

It also has been trying, through the medium of official statements, to bring home to the North Vietnamese that they are asking for trouble by continuing to support Communist rebellions in neighboring countries.

Bible Reading Is Not Upheld

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court overturned today a Florida court decision that upheld Bible reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in Miami public schools.

The tribunal cited its 1963 decision in a similar case from Abington Township in Pennsylvania.

In the Abington case, and also in a case from Maryland, the Supreme Court, last year, held that required Bible reading and prayer exercises are unconstitutional.

Typhoid Spread By Meat Slicer

ABERDEEN, Scotland (AP) — A typhoid outbreak in this city of 186,000 struck another 37 persons today after officials had voiced hope the epidemic was leveling off.

A total of 227 persons is in hospitals—197 of them confirmed typhoid cases and the others suspected victims.

City health officials said the epidemic appeared to have sprung from a supermarket meat slicer. But a Town Council meeting heard a suggestion that it may have been attributable to what one official called a deterioration of hygiene in the city's public lavatories because of the recent withdrawal of attendants. Health officials said they would investigate.

Fears the outbreak had spread to the British navy were quieted.

A cook and seaman from the submarine Rorqual were hospitalized in Glasgow as typhoid suspects but the navy reported the two sailors were suffering from gastroenteritis, an intestinal inflammation.

Schools have closed and social life is suspended in Aberdeen. One woman has died of typhoid thus far.

Cooks Graduates Hear Alumnus

"The unexamined life is not worth living," based on a statement of Socrates, formed the theme for a commencement address given Thursday night at Cooks High School by Frank Hartman, superintendent of Carman school district and a member of the Michigan board of higher education. He is a former Cooks resident, son of the John Hartmans.

The speaker urged parents of the 12 graduating students to "mortgage your farm, spend every nickel if you have to," to put the children through school. He cited that college education is much more essential now than in previous years.

Graduates were urged to "take your suitcase and whatever money you have and get on campus. You'll be surprised how much Michigan will do for you. Banks are out looking for business; they make their money on loans," he advised.

Was Principal

In his talk Hartman reminisced about early years in Cooks, where he grew up and later became school principal. A 1936 Cooks graduate, he recalled early years there, including memories of the building of the school in 1923. His mother built the house across from Cooks school after the death of his father when Frank was three years old.

"My grandfather was the only father I ever knew," he said. The wreck in which a pickup truck hit a school bus, a 1936 school fire started when boys were washing basketball uniforms with gasoline, deaths of Sylvia Roberts, the first he remembered, and various persons he knew were recalled, as well as happy events such as getting electricity in the school in 1929-30; dances in the school gym with the Rhythm Kings, good potato crops, the milk checks, threshing days, the "moonshine stills. The stills didn't bring happiness to revenue agents but brought money to help the people raise their families, he noted, adding he was not defending the practice. A snowstorm in which a busload of students were stranded at the school also was recalled. The youngsters slept at the school gym and at Hartman's.

His days as principal of Cooks high school 18 years ago, also were reviewed, with Hartman noting "Every community, no matter how small, has men as great as Washington and Lincoln and though they don't become president they give everything, work for nothing but good in their community. Men like Alfred Condon, "he noted, unknown outside their areas but loved by everyone. He went the long mile whenever asked," he observed.

The Graduates
Cooks has always been worshipful, Hartman noted, and "even as young people we knew right from wrong. People didn't have to be worried about concealed weapons, about locking doors." Baseball, basketball, the "human resources," the WPA checks, the War boom, "when people in Cooks had some money," inside toilets, the highway construction, and his sister's graduation from high school, at which Dr. Glen Jackson, now of Grand Rapids spoke on "The Golden Fleece" were recalled.

In conclusion he cited that Socrates chose death rather than compromise his principles and beliefs, and urged students to investigate and take advantage of the educational base they have received.

Janice Carley gave the valedictory and Diana Smith, the salutatory address. Invocation was by the Rev. Howard Brooks and benediction by the Rev. Joseph Charlebois. Mrs. Evelyn Swartstrom played the processional and recessional music. The boys quartet of

Better Education Board Predicted

COOKS — Frank Hartman, former resident here to give the high school commencement address predicts the new state board of education established by the Constitution will be the most influential board in the state and will be recognized as "the voice of education in Michigan."

Hartman said the board, as it begins its functions Jan. 1, 1965 will have responsibility for public education, community colleges and higher education. Function will include appointment of the state superintendent of public instruction, and setting of his salary and term.

Hartman says many ask about length of the term; says he feels it will probably be two to three years.

The new board will have strong implied powers from designation as coordinating agency for all state universities in budgetary requirements. It will control all junior or community colleges. The board will appoint a subcommittee, as provided by the Constitution, to regulate community colleges, with the committee responsible to the state board.

Hartman was elected to a 6-year term on the board in 1961 and under provisions of the new constitution must run for re-election.

Certifies Teachers
The board formerly consisted of three elected members and the state superintendent of public instruction, ex officio, with voting rights. The superintendent served as secretary of the board.

The new constitution provides for an 8-member board. Hartman, a son of the late John Hartman of Cooks, says he will be a candidate for re-election. He has served as superintendent of Carman schools eight years and before that was superintendent of Hartland schools, south of Flint, four years. He also served as principal of Cooks school.

The state board of education no longer has responsibility for governing Western, Central, Eastern and Northern Michigan universities, since Jan. 1, 1964, a function it had from 1857 when Eastern Michigan College was the first teacher training school established west of the Alleghenies. Other functions of the board continue under the new Constitution.

It is the only agency authorized to issue teacher certificates, it licenses trade, business and technical schools, and is the final appeal board for property transfers among or between school districts. Any college, public, private or denominational, which wishes to organize must obtain its charter either through the state board of education or the Michigan Legislature. The board has just created a new college, Delta Senior College, replacing Delta College, a community unit, at Midland. It is authorized to award baccalaureate degrees in several areas, including nursing and education.

Challenge
The new state board will have some residual duties from the present one, after Jan. 1, 1965 and also will take on many new ones, under the new constitution, Hartman said.

This will challenge a new board of education and a strongly-constructed one will become the most influential of all state boards. Hartman predicts very qualified men will be seeking election to the board.

"Michigan State and the University of Michigan and the State Board have attracted wonderful men to their board and I feel the new board will attract even better qualified persons," he said.

There is no pay set for the state board post. Presently members receive $3 a day for the days the board is in session.

Month Of May Anything But Merry For Detroit

DETROIT (AP)—The merry month of May was anything but that for the Detroit Tigers who slipped 9½ games off the pace with a double setback at the hands of the Chicago White Sox Sunday.

The 5-3 and 8-3 victories recorded by the league-leading White Sox Sunday gave them a sweep of the four-game weekend series, which attracted 46,561.

"I think we have a better club than we have shown so far," said Manager Charlie Dressen. "I sure hope June is better for us."

The Tigers were 11-18 for the month, tumbling six games below the 500 mark and floundering in the second division for much of the time.

"Where can we go for help?" Dressen asked. "I think we can get better because (Al) Kaline should hit better and if (Don) Demeter start hitting, that will help, too."

But even if the two Tiger outfielders do start to come through, Dressen admits that it's unlikely they can pull the team up by themselves.

A reporter remarked that in 23 of the 42 games played to date, the Tigers have scored three or fewer runs.

"That's not too good, is it?" was Dressen's terse remark. Mistakes by the Tigers played a big part in Sunday's two losses.

Dick McAuliffe's error in the fourth inning of the opener started the White Sox on a two-run inning which gave them the lead they never relinquished.

McAuliffe had stroked a two-run homer in the second to give Detroit the only lead it was to enjoy all day. Pete Ward hit his third homer in as many days in the top of the inning for Chicago.

The Tigers twice had men on third but could not bring them in. McAuliffe tripled with one away in the fourth and died there, while Kaline was left stranded after knocking in the Tigers' third run in the fifth.

Mickey Lolich (4-4) lost his third in a row.

In the nightcap, the White Sox got two runs in the second inning off Ed Rakow on Tom McCraw's bases-loaded single.

In the fifth, pitcher Gary Peters singled with two away and Mike Hershberger was safe credited with a hit when McAuliffe fielded his grounder, hesitated in throwing to second, and was unable to make a play. Don Buford promptly cleared the sacks with a home run.

Back-to-back homers by George Thomas and Norm Cash in the seventh inning brought the Tigers a little closer to challenging for the lead.

But the White Sox rallied for three runs in the eighth, two of them on a homer by Ron Hansen.

Rakow lasted five innings in the second game and did not appear to have the stuff which carried him to two victories in relief against Baltimore last week.

But his work did not discourage Dressen, who said the right-hander would remain in the starting rotation.

Fred Gladding, recalled with Denny McLain from Syracuse Saturday, worked the sixth inning of the second game and impressed Dressen with his speed.

"I don't care what the record says," Dressen commented. "He's got a little more speed on that ball."

McLain will get a chance to show his pitches Tuesday night when he is expected to face Washington in the first of two night games.

Dave Wickensham is the probable for Wednesday. The Tigers have Thursday off and move to Chicago for the weekend.

The St. Louis Cardinals and Tigers were scheduled to play an exhibition game for the benefit of sandlot baseball tonight at 7 p. m.

The Escanaba program is being run as one league this season instead of the American and National leagues as in past years.

Mead No. 1 was the power in the American League last season while Hall Insurance is up from the National loop.

Both teams have won two straight starts while four others have split their two games and two have bowed twice in the first week of action.

Both the leaders will be in action at Memorial Field tonight. Mead takes on the Teamsters in the opener at 6:45 and Hall tackles Skinny's Bar at 8:15.

Each team in the league will play twice each week. This week's schedule is posted above.

Peaches Gets Wimbledon Bid

HAMTRAMCK (AP)—Peaches Bartkovic, 15-year-old Hamtramck tennis queen and the youngest ever to win the National Public Parks Championship, has been accepted for the junior singles in England's top tournament, the Wimbledon.

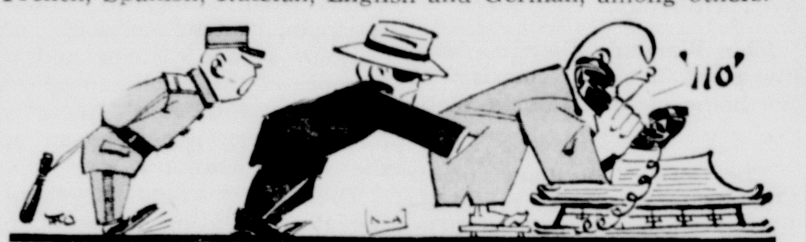

The Wimbledon opens June 17 and ends July 4. Peaches thus won't defend her public parks championship in Detroit in the singles opening June 27.

Olympic Crooks Must Beat Code

TOKYO—(NEA)—Pickpockets who work the Olympic games this fall will have to be as fast as some of the competitors or it promises to be a lean season.

The Tokyo police will add 5,000 members to the force for the Olympics, with pickpockets one of their main objectives. And then there's code "110," which sounds like something out of James Bond and should be just as lethal.

An Olympic visitor in trouble can dash to any telephone and dial "1-1-0," a direct link with police headquarters. Nationality won't matter because linguists will handle calls in French, Spanish, Russian, English and German, among others.

The number will connect the victim with an electronic device in police headquarters, and a map of the city will flash a light to spot the trouble area.

Before the caller hangs up, a squad car will be speeding to the exact location with a thorough account of the crime.

Police plan to use a number of other devices in efforts to thwart the pickpockets, but won't disclose them.

They're probably all attending Berlitz now, learning to recognize "Tasuke kure, goto da" in a dozen languages over Code 110.

Timely Hits Make Buford Vital Man

By The Associated Press
Don Buford, Chicago's pre-season candidate for American League rookie-of-the-year honors, has been carrying Pete Ward's glove—and little else—since Ward's recent return to slugging form.

But Buford, whose batting average to date barely exceeds Ward's weight, is beginning to make his base hits count for the league-leading White Sox.

He had only two hits in Sunday's 5-3, 8-3 doubleheader victory over Detroit, but they were good for five runs batted in. His first-game triple delivered the White Sox' deciding run and his first major league home run came with two mates on base in the nightcap.

Buford, the International League's most valuable player in 1963 when he led the IL with a .336 mark, has been fighting a losing battle against American League pitchers. The little infielder, used primarily as a late-inning replacement for the hot-handed Ward recently, carried a .191 average out of Sunday's doubleheader.

But his run production in the twinbill—he had driven in one run in 79 previous at-bats—may be an indication of better things to come for the 27-year-old switch-hitter who shared top billing with Richie Allen of the Philadelphia Phillies in spring rookie polls.

Chicago's double victory enabled the White Sox to move one-half game up on second place Baltimore in the AL. The Orioles nipped Los Angeles 2-1 behind southpaw Steve Barber. Cleveland defeated Washington twice 9-6 and 8-3, taking advantage of a flubbed third strike in the first game and burying the Senators under an extra-base onslaught in the afterpiece.

Kansas City topped the New York Yankees 4-2 on Wayne Causey's three-run homer and Boston edged Minnesota 4-3 on a ninth-inning pinch-hit double by Felix Mantilla.

In National League activity, the New York Mets dropped their doubleheader opener to San Francisco 5-3 and then succumbed 8-6 in a 23-inning nightcap that ran seven hours and 23 minutes, a major league endurance record. Cincinnati and St. Louis divided a twin bill, the Reds winning the opener 6-0 and the Cards taking the second game 2-1.

Chicago beat Milwaukee 4-3 in 10 innings; Los Angeles outscored Pittsburgh 6-4 and Philadelphia defeated Houston 4-1 in other games.

Buford's three-run homer and a two-run blast by Ron Hansen helped Gary Peters to his sixth victory in the Chicago-Detroit nightcap and gave the White Sox a sweep of the four-game weekend series.

Ex-Tiger Don Mossi blanked Detroit for three innings in the opener, preserving the victory for rookie Frank Kreutzer. Buford tripled home Mike Hershberger in the fifth with what proved to be the winning run. Ward hit his third homer in as many games.

Cleveland trailed 6-5 with two out in the ninth inning of its first game but a third strike to Vic Davalillo escaped Senators' catcher Mike Brumley and the Indians went on to score four runs. Washington, behind 5-0 early in the game, had pulled ahead in the eighth on Bill Skowron's 10th homer.

Homers by Leon Wagner, his second of the afternoon, and Woody Held and a three-run double by Joe Azcue triggered the Indians' second-game rout. Barber, a 20-game winner last season who had been plagued with a bad back this year, pitched a three-hitter through seven innings, before giving way to Stu Miller, and picked up his first victory.

Causey's seventh-inning blast off Yankee reliever Hal Reniff, came with two outs and the A's behind 2-1. Both New York runs came in the top of the inning on a two-out pinch single by Mickey Mantle.

The Red Sox snapped a 3-3 tie and their three-game losing streak when Frank Malzone led off the ninth with his second single, was sacrificed to second and scored on Mantilla's clutch hit.

Speedway Classic Takes Two Lives; Foyt Winner

By DALE BURGESS
INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—The USAC racing fraternity began moving its cars and equipment to Milwaukee today for the 100-mile there next Sunday, enriched by the biggest purse ever paid for the Indianapolis 500 but impoverished by the loss of two outstanding drivers in the 48th Memorial Day grid.

Charging A.J. Foyt Jr. and his old Betsy Offenhauser got the lion's share of $153,650 from the $506,625 total.

The first closed circuit telecast of the Memorial Day event showed veteran Eddie Sachs plowing into the side of rookie Dave MacDonald's ultra-light car and causing a gasoline explosion that killed them both.

The remarkable live television show contributed nothing to the purse, which was only $12,959 more than last year, when Parnelli Jones picked up the previous record winner's share.

Anton (Tony) Hulman Jr., Indianapolis Motor Speedway owner, said the closed circuit TV "about broke even" financially but it was considered a success.

It should make a substantial contribution to the purse in the future, he added.

The crowd, probably a record last Saturday but not disclosed, was estimated from 260,000 up to an unlikely 350,000.

A large proportion of it saw the great ball of fire that erupted on the second lap near the upper end of the main straightaway. Many felt the heat and inhaled the smoke as five other cars piled into the inferno and were blasted from the race.

The race was halted and restarted for only the second time since the 500 was inaugurated in 1911. The other stop in 1926 was because of rain.

The hard-driving Foyt, three times USAC national champion and the 1961 Memorial Day winner, gunned his supposedly obsolescent front-engine Sheraton-Thompson Special into first place on the 55th lap, after the more glamorous new equipment had washed out.

Rodger Ward, twice winner of the event, made the best showing with one of the new rear-engine Fords, taking the $56,925 second money. He had to make five pit stops three more than he planned and three more than Foyt needed.

Scott Jimmy Clark and teammate Dan Gurney, in the new Lotus-Fords, were the victims of imported tires that began

Rival Coaches Get Bad News

VILLANOVA, Pa. (AP)—That big sigh you heard? It's from the Eastern track coaches, not so much over Villanova's fifth straight IC4A track and field championship but the manner in which it was accomplished.

The Wildcats got enough points from non-seniors to win it, including nine from sophomore sprinter Earl Horner, a firm indication that Jumbo Elliott's Main Liners plan to continue their dynasty.

Vic Zwolak and Rolando Cruz were the standouts in the 88th edition of the meet Saturday, but were the only senior contributors to the 45 points that won, as expected, the Wildcats' seventh title in eight years.

Non-seniors got 30, enough to win against second place Harvard's 26½. Morgan State had 20, Penn State and Yale 16 each and Manhattan 15 in the field of 51 teams.

Pancho Seeks Tennis Crown

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AP)—Pancho Gonzales headed for Los Angeles and a shot at his third tournament title on the 1964 pro tennis tour in the Masters round-robin, which starts tonight on the cement courts of the Los Angeles Tennis Club.

Gonzales won the U.S. pro indoor title Sunday in a 5-7, 3-6, 10-8, 11-9, 8-6 marathon with top-seeded Ken Rosewall of Australia. The duel lasted three hours and 12 minutes.

shredding chunks of rubber.

Bobby Marshman, driving a year-old Lotus with a new Ford engine, set a 90 one-lap record of 156.646—faster than Foyt qualified with the track all to himself, 154.672. Then Marshman sheered off an oil tank plug and had to retire after 35 laps.

Parnelli Jones and Foyt had an interesting duel for a while in similar Indy roadsters but the fuel tank of Jones' Agajani-Bowes Special blew up in a pit stop and he was lucky to escape with minor burns. After that it was all Foyt for the last 146 laps.

Only 12 cars were running at the end and four of them were driven by rookies, including Johnny White of Warren, Mich., who took the special Rookie of the Year award for finishing fourth behind veteran Lloyd Ruby.

Ward had the only Ford-powered car that finished among seven starters. Factors other than engine trouble eliminated five of them and veteran Eddie Johnson was stranded by a faulty oil pump.

The first four finishers exceeded Jones' year-old record average of 143.137 m.p.h., topped by Foyt's 147.350.

Mets, Giants Stage 23 Inning Marathon

By The Associated Press
When Gaylor and Galen Cisco gave their show an out-of-town tryout, they never realized it would be so well received once it hit Broadway that they would have to extend their performance.

The players—pitchers Gaylor and Galen Cisco—and their teammates—the San Francisco Giants and the New York Mets—did just that Sunday as they waded through 23 innings in the longest game in major league history from the standpoint of time.

The Giants and the Mets did not exactly play on Broadway but a few miles away at Shea Stadium. The Giants won the seven-hour-and-23-minute production 8-6. The victory came after they had taken a mere 2:29 to win the opener of the doubleheader 5-3.

Just 15 days before, in San Francisco, the same teams played 15 innings with the Giants winning 6-4. Perry was the winner in that one and Cisco the loser.

The right-handed hurlers performed in the same roles Sunday. Perry, who pitched only one inning in the earlier game, went 10 innings this time. Cisco, who lasted 1-2-3 innings May 16 made it through nine innings.

The game took more time than it would to sit through Hamlet twice. The New York Yankees and the Detroit Tigers previously had played the longest game—seven hours even—June 24, 1962. And only three games went more innings than Sunday's.

Cisco—who really couldn't be blamed if, like Hamlet, he started seeing ghosts—limited the Giants to two hits in eight innings before Jim Davenport tripled with two out in the 23rd. Pinch hitter Del Crandall drove Davenport home with a ground-rule double after Cap Peterson was walked purposely.

Jesus Alou brought Peterson home with an infield single.

Northern Dancer, who will again be ridden by the controversial Willie Hartack, will be favored over the California colt, Hill Rise, with Willie Shoemaker in the irons once more.

Ruth Jessen Golf Winner

BEAUMONT, Tex. (AP)—Ruth Jessen posted rounds of 71 and 74 on Sunday's 36-hole golf wind-up and won the $8,500 Babe Zaharias Open with a 214 for the 54 holes.

It was Miss Jessen's first win of the woman's golf tour. Her triumph here was a further indication that the girls of the tour are catching up with mighty Mickey Wright, who won 13 tournaments and $31,600 last year for all-time records, and started out this year by winning four of the first six tournaments which she played.

But Miss Rawls beat her out at Dallas and Sunday Miss Wright wound up in a tie for third because of a disastrous three-over-par 76 on the second 18 holes.

Miss Jessen, who vaulted into third place among the money-winners with her triumph here, sewed it up with a two-under-par 71 in the second round. She faltered to a closing 74 but was so far ahead she never was in any danger.

Miss Wright now leads the money winners with $9,710. Miss Rawls is second with $6,597.50 while Miss Jessen is third with $5,875.50.

Elsewhere in the NL, Chicago nipped Milwaukee 4-3 in 10 innings. Philadelphia stopped Houston 4-1, Los Angeles got by Pittsburgh 6-4 and St. Louis edged Cincinnati 2-1 after losing 6-0.

In the American League, Chicago swept Detroit 5-3 and 8-3, Cleveland took Washington twice 9-6 and 8-3, Baltimore nipped Los Angeles 2-1, Boston edged Minnesota 4-3 and Kansas City beat New York 4-2.

A crowd of 57,037, largest in the majors this season, saw the Mets pull a triple play in the 14th inning and Giants' Manager Al Dark ejected in the 15th. The fans also saw the Mets' Joe Christopher play the role of the villain with his three-run homer in the seventh that sent the game into extra innings.

Orlando Cepeda stole home with the deciding run in the opener. Juan Marichal won his eighth game in nine decisions.

Billy Williams cracked his 13th home run in the 10th inning for the Cubs' triumph. Billy Cowan's run-scoring single tied the game for the Cubs in the ninth. Williams, getting three hits, increased his league-leading average to .414.

Art Mahaffey walked seven Colts, but Richie Allen and Ruben Amaro backed him with two-run homers as the Phillies remained in first place.

Sandy Koufax won his fifth game against four defeats, but he needed the aid of Pittsburgh errors and reliever Ron Peranoski. Two of the Dodgers' runs in the four-run third scored with the help of the miscues.

Tommy Davis singled home Jim Gilliam with the tie-breaking run in the eighth. Bob Gibson ignited a two-run Cardinals' rally in the eighth inning of the nightcap with a single, then held off a Reds' outburst in the ninth for his fifth triumph against one loss. Dick Groat's sacrifice fly and Ken Boyer's single sent St. Louis' runs off John Tstouris, who until the eighth had given up just five hits.

Bob Purkey scattered six hits in the opener. The Reds shelved Ray Washburn from the mound with four runs in the first inning.

THE MANISTIQUE Pulp & Paper Co. mill has a problem due to low water. An earth dam was built across the Manistique River, below the tailgates, and water was diverted to the area to keep draft tubes covered with water. Air seeps in otherwise, interfering with the vacuum which brings water from the flume down 25 feet over turbines to power grinders. (Daily Press Photo)

City Budget Is Submitted

A tentative budget of $273,300 was presented to the City Council at a special meeting Friday night. Revenues are conservatively estimated and, while the 1964-65 budget is not spectacular, it is balanced, S. C. Gesko Jr., manager said.

He suggested the Council consider steering a portion, probably $6,000 of $85,000 budgeted for street patching, as matching funds for a long term bond issue which will finance major street, sewer and water line repairs. Though not much, it will be a start on the work, he said.

Rev. Arrowood Given Honorary Divinity Degree

An honorary doctor of divinity degree was bestowed by Baptist Bible College, Denver, Colo., on Virgil Norberg Arrowood, former Manistique resident, at May 18 ceremonies. He is pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in Lamar, Colo., and delivered the commencement address at the college.

Michigan Elk To Be Hunted

LANSING (AP)—Gov. George W. Romney Thursday signed into law a bill to permit a special limited elk hunting season in Michigan. The special season this fall will mark the first time since the turn of the century that elk can be hunted east of the Mississippi.

Tornado Victims Lag In Cleanup

MOUNT CLEMENS (AP) — Laggard property owners of tornado - battered Chesterfield Township face a crackdown if they don't clear away debris.

Dr. Oscar D. Stryker, director of the Macomb County Health Department, said Saturday if the refuse is not cleared away from some properties he will declare the area a health hazard.

Many owners have tidied up.
Some, however, have failed to tend to conditions that could create hazards, Dr. Stryker said.

The May 8 tornado took 11
lives and caused great damage.

Rep. Jeannette Rankin, of Montana, was the only woman in Congress to vote for women's suffrage.

Work Week Cut May Boomerang

EAST LANSING — Two Congressional bills proposed to cut the work week will mean less overtime for current jobholders, but they may not achieve their ultimate goal of easing the unemployment problem.

Instead of revising the Fair Labor Standards Act (FLSA), suggests David I. Verway of Michigan State University, Congress should consider removing obstacles hampering effectiveness of the law's existing penalties for overtime work.

Verway says that two bills introduced into Congress — one to cut the work week from 40 to 35 hours, the other to maintain the 40-hour work week but provide double pay for overtime — may backfire and diminish the number of hours already available to the nation's work force.

The FLSA, passed in 1938, set 40 hours as a legal work week. As an inducement to employers to hire additional workers for extra production, the act provides that the wage rate for hours worked in excess of 40 must be at least 50 per cent greater than the standard hourly wage.

If either bill now before Congress to change the FLSA is passed, Verway says, most firms will be forced to reduce the length of their average work week.

He adds, however, that the reduction "would not necessarily entail a compensating increase in the number of employed persons. Some firms might immediately curtail production (possibly with a price increase) and then take steps to replace men with machines."

Overtime Penalty
Verway believes that the FLSA as it is now written would help ease unemployment if effectiveness of its overtime penalty were not diluted by fixed labor costs and some fringe benefits assessed an employer for each new worker he hires.

If an employer had to consider only wages, Verway explains, he would save costs in extra production by hiring additional workers at the standard wage rather than paying overtime wages to existing personnel.

"Unfortunately," he says, "the economic comparison that the employer must make involves considerably more than the overtime penalty."

"For a while he need not incur significant expenses above the straight hourly wage and overtime penalty to induce his present work force to work overtime, he must bear the burden of added fixed labor costs in hiring additional workers to avoid the overtime penalty." Fixed labor costs are those necessary in hiring, testing and training new personnel. In addition, Verway notes, employers may need to pay for employee fringe benefits: health insurance, life insurance, and old age and unemployment insurance.

Work Week Adjustment
The latter payments are "so geared that it is generally to the employer's advantage to stabilize the level of his work force and allow some variability in the length of the work week," according to Verway.

He cites the Manpower Development and Training Act and the Area Redevelopment Act as positive steps by the government to lessen fixed labor costs and at the same time strengthen the existing penalty. "As time goes by," he adds, "we might want to expand them."

Verway urges that tax laws be altered "to eliminate the inducement to augment wages and salaries with voluntary supplements like group health insurance."

He also suggests evaluation of our present method of levying social security taxes. "We might even ask ourselves whether or not the federal government itself should become a contributor to the funds," he says.

Verway notes that "if our economy ever does attain full employment, then a larger overtime penalty than the one now in force would greatly augment inflationary pressures."

Normandy Battle Scene Revisited

Editor's Note — On D-Day plus six, Harvey Hudson, then a 1st lieutenant with an artillery battalion, landed on Omaha Beach in the Allied invasion of Nazi-held Europe. Now a member of The Associated Press staff in Paris, he revisits the scenes of battle.

By HARVEY HUDSON
OMAHA BEACH, Normany (AP) — D-Day veterans who make the sentimental trek to the Normandy invasion beaches are gripped by nostalgia and sorrow and thankfulness that they survived. Sometimes they withdraw in confusion, unable to recognize places that once had a life or death importance.

Thousands of American, Canadian, British or French soldiers who took part in the bloody assault on the beaches June 6, 1944, revisit the scene each year. Hundreds are expected to roam over the area, digging deeply into their memories, for the 20th anniversary celebration this year.

"Smell The Powder"
Bernard Rippey, Richmond, Calif., recalling his first trip back to the spot where he landed by glider said, "The emotional experience really grabbed me. I could almost smell the powder."

Jack Tollerday, Newton, Kan., who landed by parachute, said, "Memory and present-day reality make a startling contrast. It was a three-ring circus when we landed, with ack-ack fire, planes falling, and Germans scattering like chickens. Now it seems odd to see a farmer calmly hoeing his field."

The savage scar of war still disfigure the beaches. Telltale debris of battle litters the sand. Bathers and fishermen sauntering along the beaches ignore the rusty cables, twisted bits of metal and contorted sections of steel roadway matting. Despite cleanup efforts, enough relics remain to set Uta, Omaha, Gold, June and Sword beaches permanently apart from such stretches of sand as Miami, Newport or Waikiki that have known only peace.

Rusty Guns Pointed
Massive pillboxes dot the coastline. From some the ugly snouts of rusted 88mm German guns still point seaward. Hitler boasted his Third Reich would endure 1,000 years. The pillboxes — impossible to destroy without damaging nearby buildings, and with no commercial salvage value — could conceivably live out the full term of the fallen dictator's shattered dreams.

But the personal landmarks that set the scene apart for most soldiers are gone. Wrecked landing craft on the beaches have been removed. Bombed houses have been razed and new ones appear in their places. Church steeples have been restored, broken walls repaired. The myriad signs of a moving army have disappeared. Two exit roads hacked through the bluff at Omaha Beach are now only cowpaths.

Four museums have been established to honor the heroism of June 6, 1944. French residents of the area have a lively smile and a warm handshake for any old soldiers who return. The Allied invasion plan called for night parachute drops by the British at the eastern end of the 60-mile invasion front, and by Americans at the base of the Cherbourg Peninsula at the west. In between, ground forces were to come ashore at dawn at the five designated beaches, under cover of overwhelming naval fire and aerial bombardment.

An engraved marble plaque over the doorway of the "Pegasus Bridge cafe restaurant" proclaims "this was the first house to be liberated during the last hour of 5th June 1944 by men of the Oxfordshire and Buckinghamshire Light Infantry in the British 6th Airborne Division."

Blown Off Course
The sign may cheat a few minutes on the time—most records put the landings at shortly after midnight—but the fact remains that the glider landing of six platoons was one of the few operations of the day that went to plan.

The gliders landed beside the bridge over the canal leading from Caen to the sea. The mission of capturing this bridge, and another over the Orne River a half-mile away, was quickly accomplished.

The parachute drops in both British and American sectors often fell far from their marks. Planes carrying the U.S. 82nd and 101st airborne divisions were blown off course by the high winds. The 15,000 men were widely dispersed. Many drowned in water concealed by a grassy surface, or in the channel.

Back Three Times
Rippey, then a 2nd lieutenant in the 82nd Airborne Division, recalls "Our glider smashed against a hedgerow at the end of a field between 2 a.m. and 3 a.m. We cut away the side of the glider to unload our jeep, dug our way through a big bank to get the jeep on the road, then headed for what we supposed was Ste. Mere Eglise. We heard small arms fire from that direction."

"We moved very carefully through the dark and it took us an hour or more to reach Ste. Mere Eglise. By that time the fighting had stopped. We met some people who said our anti-aircraft unit was at Bicouville. We headed for there and arrived about 9 a.m. About 80 men out of our battalion of 600 had assembled."

Rippey returned to France in June 1960, as a civilian employee of the U.S. Army. "I went up to the beaches, right after I got back there," he said. "And I've been back three more times. I'm going back for the 20th anniversary and I'm going to take my 9-year-old son along to show him what his old man did in the war."

Veto Of Utility Refund Stands

LANSING (AP) — Attempts in both the House and Senate to override vetoes by Gov. George W. Romney of bills to help pay the cost of persons, companies and utilities forced to move by highway construction both failed.

The house could raise only 45 "yes" votes, far short of the necessary two thirds majority, in an attempt to reverse Romney's veto of a bill permitting payment of moving costs to persons and firms owned out by new highway construction.

A senate attempt to override the governor on his veto of a measure allowing such payments to public utilities also failed, winning only seven votes.

State Highway Commissioner John Mackie was particularly critical of Romney for his veto of the measure allowing reimbursement to individuals.

"The governor's veto means thousands of tenants displaced by highway construction will be denied financial assistance for moving costs," Mackie said.

The bill called for maximum payments of $200 for families and up to $3,000 for businesses forced to move by highway projects. It passed the senate 31-0 and the house by an 89-3 vote.
